Class Dates: January 14 - May 3

In this course we will engaging in hands-on, practical work within regional archival collections while studying black abolitionist speeches dating from roughly 1787 to 1875. We will begin with the question, “What is an archive?” and proceed to think about various historical writings and cultural-studies approaches attempting to answer that query. Then we will dive into reading about and researching African-American oratory related to the American abolitionist movement. The ultimate goal of the course is completing a final seminar paper on a topic related to the abolition of slavery in the United States and the establishment of the very first Civil Rights Act in 1875. Your seminar paper will rely on the work you will do in various types of archives located around our geographical region. Students should expect to spend several hours a week deep in archival research at a number of usual (and unusual) places, such as university special collections, museums, city halls, state capitals—and possibly cemeteries! — wherever your research questions may take you as you develop knowledge and skills of using archives and archival research to answer questions related to your specific research question.

Required Textbooks and Other Course Materials:

Lift Every Voice: African-American Oratory, 1787-1900 (Foner & Branham) Blank journal

Other Required Items:

wood pencils
white cotton gloves
magnifying glass
document scanner for smartphone Instapaper account (instapaper.com)

Grade Requirements:

The grades for this course are heavily weighed toward projects and class participation. Students must be in class on time and ready to participate in discussions.

- Participation = 25% (Includes daily journal keeping)
- Projects #1-4 = 10% each (total of 40%)
- Final Paper = 35%

Average of Total= Final Grade

Participation Guidelines: This guideline will help you understand how I assign grades for participation as part of your in-class work:

A Always Participates—informed and almost always informing

B Frequently Participates—sometimes uninformed, but always focused

C Occasionally Participates—tries each week, but may not always be focused

D Seldom Participates—speaks only once a fortnight, shows little evidence of preparation; may actually be prepared & focused, but perhaps too reticent to reveal that preparation

F Never Participates—does not contribute to class discussion, does not show preparation

Many of the projects for this course will require students to gather information from various archives and interviews, or attend events that they will then write about as part of the content for their assignments. Please make sure that you give yourself adequate time between doing the required fieldwork and the writing/editing you will complete involving that fieldwork.

What you will learn:

- Introduction to theories of archives
- Hands-on archival research techniques
- Translating archival findings into written research

Note on Late Work:

Any project or assignment that is turned in late will receive a grade of Zero. Arriving with your work after class has begun on the due date is considered late.

OTHER IMPORTANT STUFF

Community and Life of the Mind in the Classroom: I believe that the most valuable asset in the classroom is the sense of community that develops among the group, not any one individual in the class, instructor or student. For this reason, it is vital that an environment exists where all feel welcome to participate. The unique backgrounds from which we come should not be seen as an obstacle, but rather as a resource that will help the class understand the many perspectives in our world. Therefore, it is not acceptable for any member of the class to engage in any behavior that threatens or impairs the ability of any other to be an active participant. However, it is not enough to say that no person shall be mistreated or threatened because of gender, race, sexual orientation, ethnic background, religious belief, and/or mental or physical impairment. Instead, it is necessary that all members of the learning community realize that they have a responsibility to take an active role in creating a welcoming environment.

Attendance Policy: Punctual attendance is mandatory, as there is a lot of work to be done in a short amount of time. However, I understand that emergencies happen, students are allotted two (2) absences before any penalties are assigned. Your third (3rd) absence will result in a failure (F) for the course. Only official university absences are excused. Students representing UTA in a university-mandated activity that requires missing class should provide official documentation of schedules and turn in work in advance, unless you have approved alternate arrangements with me. Please note that students who show up to class without their books (analog or electronic) will be counted as absent. Two (2) tardies also count as an absence. Absences due to illness, sleeping in, and long weekends are unexcused - they all count toward the absences limit. Since illness is likely at some point during the semester, you are urged to save the unexcused absence for times when you are too sick to come to class. For any absence, it is the student's responsibility to find out what work they missed and have it completed by the next class period.

E-mail: I make sure I am very accessible during office hours, and meeting in person is my preferred way to address questions. However, if you are unable to meet with me in person, please send me an email. But before you press the "Send" button, look over your email and ask yourself whether it is concise, polite, and clearly written; please make sure you leave me adequate time to respond.

Classroom Disruptions: I do my best to create a learning environment that is positive and encouraging; one where students and the instructor may address tough and important questions related to the literature and our cultural milieu. Disruptions that disturb this environment are therefore frustrating and unnecessary. I will not tolerate disruptive behavior. Therefore, do not talk while others are talking. Do not let your cell-phone ring during class or use it for anything other than reading assigned ebooks and essays. And, most important, be respectful to your classmates during discussions. It is perfectly possible and acceptable to disagree without being rude. This is called civil discourse, conversation engaged with the purpose of enhancing understanding.

Due Dates: Assignments must be submitted prior to or on the specified date and time listed on the syllabus and prompts. Students must turn their assignments in ahead of time if the due date coincides with an excused university-related absence. Late work will automatically be graded down 20%. Each late day afterward, the assignment will be penalized an additional 10%.

93-100 A	77-79 C+
90-92 A-	73-76 C
87-89 B+	70-72 C-
83-86 B	67-69 D+
80-82 B-	60-66 D

Boilerplate:

While UT Arlington does not require instructors to take attendance in their courses, the U.S. Department of Education requires that the University have a mechanism in place to mark when Federal Student Aid recipients “begin attendance in a course.” UT Arlington instructors will report when students begin attendance in a course as part of the final grading process. Specifically, when assigning a student a grade of F, faculty report the last date a student attended their class based on evidence such as a test, participation in a class project or presentation, or an engagement online via Blackboard. This date is reported to the Department of Education for federal financial aid recipients.

Drop Policy: Students may drop or swap (adding and dropping a class concurrently) classes through self-service in MyMav from the beginning of the registration period through the late registration period. After the late registration period, students must see their academic advisor to drop a class or withdraw. Undeclared students must see an advisor in the University Advising Center. Drops can continue through a point two-thirds of the way through the term or session. It is the student's responsibility to officially withdraw if they do not plan to attend after registering.

Students will not be automatically dropped for non-attendance. Repayment of certain types of financial aid administered through the University may be required as the result of dropping classes or withdrawing. For more information, contact the Office of Financial Aid and Scholarships (<http://web.uta.edu/aao/fao/>).

Disability Accommodations: UT Arlington is on record as being committed to both the spirit and letter of all federal equal opportunity legislation, including The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), The Americans with Disabilities Amendments Act (ADAAA), and Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. All instructors at UT Arlington are required by law to provide “reasonable accommodations” to students with disabilities, so as not to discriminate on the basis of disability. Students are responsible for providing the instructor with official notification in the form of a letter certified by the Office for Students with Disabilities (OSD). Only those students who have officially documented a need for an accommodation will have their request honored. Students experiencing a range of conditions (Physical, Learning, Chronic Health, Mental Health, and Sensory) that may cause diminished academic performance or other barriers to learning may seek services and/or accommodations by contacting:

The Office for Students with Disabilities, (OSD) www.uta.edu/disability or calling 817-272-3364. Information regarding diagnostic criteria and policies for obtaining disability-based academic accommodations can be found at www.uta.edu/disability.

Counseling and Psychological Services, (CAPS) www.uta.edu/caps/ or calling 817-272-3671 is also available to all students to help increase their understanding of personal issues, address mental and behavioral health problems and make positive changes in their lives.

Non-Discrimination Policy: The University of Texas at Arlington does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, religion, age, gender, sexual orientation, disabilities, genetic information, and/or veteran status in its educational programs or activities it operates. For more information, visit uta.edu/eos.

Title IX Policy: The University of Texas at Arlington ("University") is committed to maintaining a learning and working environment that is free from discrimination based on sex in accordance with Title IX of the Higher Education Amendments of 1972 (Title IX), which prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex in educational programs or activities; Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Title VII), which prohibits sex discrimination in employment; and the Campus Sexual Violence Elimination Act (SaVE Act). Sexual misconduct is a form of sex discrimination and will not be tolerated. For information regarding Title IX, visit www.uta.edu/titleIX or contact Ms. Jean Hood, Vice President and Title IX Coordinator at (817) 272-7091 or jmhood@uta.edu.

Academic Integrity: Students enrolled all UT Arlington courses are expected to adhere to the UT Arlington Honor Code:

I pledge, on my honor, to uphold UT Arlington's tradition of academic integrity, a tradition that values hard work and honest effort in the pursuit of academic excellence.

I promise that I will submit only work that I personally create or contribute to group collaborations, and I will appropriately reference any work from other sources. I will follow the highest standards of integrity and uphold the spirit of the Honor Code.

UT Arlington faculty members may employ the Honor Code in their courses by having students acknowledge the honor code as part of an examination or requiring students to incorporate the honor code into any work submitted. Per UT System Regents' Rule 50101, §2.2, suspected violations of university's standards for academic integrity (including the Honor Code) will be referred to the Office of Student Conduct. Violators will be disciplined in accordance with University policy, which may result in the student's suspension or expulsion from the University. Additional information is available at <https://www.uta.edu/conduct/>.

Electronic Communication: UT Arlington has adopted MavMail as its official means to communicate with students about important deadlines and events, as well as to transact university-related business regarding financial aid, tuition, grades, graduation, etc. All students are assigned a MavMail account and are responsible for checking the inbox regularly. There is no additional charge to students for using this account, which remains active even after graduation. Information about activating and using MavMail is available at <http://www.uta.edu/oit/cs/email/mavmail.php>.

Campus Carry: Effective August 1, 2016, the Campus Carry law (Senate Bill 11) allows those licensed individuals to carry a concealed handgun in buildings on public university campuses, except in locations the University establishes as prohibited. Under the new law, openly carrying handguns is not allowed on college campuses. For more information, visit <http://www.uta.edu/news/info/campus-carry/> Student Feedback Survey: At the end of each term, students enrolled in face-to-face and online classes categorized as “lecture,” “seminar,” or “laboratory” are directed to complete an online Student Feedback Survey (SFS). Instructions on how to access the SFS for this course will be sent directly to each student through MavMail approximately 10 days before the end of the term. Each student’s feedback via the SFS database is aggregated with that of other students enrolled in the course. Students’ anonymity will be protected to the extent that the law allows. UT Arlington’s effort to solicit, gather, tabulate, and publish student feedback is required by state law and aggregate results are posted online. Data from SFS is also used for faculty and program evaluations. For more information, visit <http://www.uta.edu/sfs>.

Final Review Week: for semester-long courses, a period of five class days prior to the first day of final examinations in the long sessions shall be designated as Final Review Week. The purpose of this week is to allow students sufficient time to prepare for final examinations. During this week, there shall be no scheduled activities such as required field trips or performances; and no instructor shall assign any themes, research problems or exercises of similar scope that have a completion date during or following this week unless specified in the class syllabus. During Final Review Week, an instructor shall not give any examinations constituting 10% or more of the final grade, except makeup tests and laboratory examinations. In addition, no instructor shall give any portion of the final examination during Final Review Week. During this week, classes are held as scheduled. In addition, instructors are not required to limit content to topics that have been previously covered; they may introduce new concepts as appropriate.

Emergency Exit Procedures: Should we experience an emergency event that requires us to vacate the building, students should exit the room and move toward the nearest exit. When exiting the building during an emergency, one should never take an elevator but should use the stairwells. Faculty members and instructional staff will assist students in selecting the safest route for evacuation and will make arrangements to assist individuals with disabilities.
